NAC2023 Health & Safety / NAC2023 Attendee COVID-19 Pandemic Waiver & Release:

NAC will be taking appropriate measures at the NAC2023 Conference & Expo to facilitate the health and safety of each NAC2023 Attendee. Notwithstanding, it must be acknowledged that some degree of risk may still exist in the context of a large indoor gathering such as NAC2023 to the extent COVID-19 pandemic conditions persist at the time of the Event. It must also be recognized that COVID-19 is a highly contagious and unpredictable disease that can result in serious illness and even death. In this regard, current CDC Guidelines point out that seniors and those with underlying medical conditions are particularly susceptible to severe illness and death from COVID-19.

In this regard, by attending NAC2023, each Attendee acknowledges and agrees on his/her own behalf and on behalf of Attendee's personnel, contractor(s), and family member(s) at the Event, to accept and assume any and all health and safety related personal or business risks or adverse consequences associated with potential or actual exposure to COVID-19, including its variants, while in attendance at the NAC2023 Conference & Expo. Such acknowledgement and agreement by Attendee also constitute an express waiver and release of NAC, its officers, directors, and contracted staff from any and all COVID-19 related liability or damages. In this same regard, NAC encourages each Attendee at NAC2023 to follow current and applicable public health and safety guidelines and precautions relative to large group gatherings at the time of the conference and applicable to the COVID-19 pandemic.
